Domhoff’s argument
(in *Who Rules America Now?):

(1) There is a socially coherent, distinctive upper class

(2) Which tends to control corporations

(3) And which, through corporations and ancillary institutions (foundations, study groups), thereby controls national (not local) policy shaping

(4) And government

(5) Maintained by special sets of institutions to socialize and co-opt (“recruit”)